

PROFESSOR JONATHAN STERN

Jonathan Stern founded the OIES Natural Gas Research Programme in 2003 and was its Director until October 2011 when he became its Chairman and a Senior Research Fellow; he became Distinguished Fellow in October 2016. He is honorary professor at the Centre for Energy, Petroleum & Mineral Law & Policy, University of Dundee; visiting professor at the Centre for Environmental Policy, Imperial College London; fellow of the Energy Delta Institute and a Distinguished Research Fellow of the Institute of Energy Economics, Japan (in Tokyo). From 2011-16 he was the EU Speaker of the EU–Russia Gas Advisory Council.

He is the author and editor of several books on gas, including: Natural Gas in Asia: The Challenges of Growth in China, India, Japan and Korea, the second edition of which was published by OUP in 2008; co-editor with Bassam Fattouh of: Natural Gas Markets in the Middle East and North Africa (OUP, 2011); and editor of: The Pricing of Internationally Traded Gas (OUP, 2012). His publications include papers (co-authored with other members of the Gas Programme) on: Reducing European Dependence on Russian Gas – Distinguishing Natural Gas Security from Geopolitics, and The Dynamics of a Liberalised European Gas Market: Determinants of Hub Prices and Roles and Risks of Major Players. He is author of two chapters in: eds. Anne-Sophie Corbeau and David Ledesma, LNG Markets in Transition: the Great Reconfiguration, published by OIES and KAPSARC in 2016.

Since 2016, his research has focussed on the future of gas. In 2017 he published two papers: on The Future of Gas in Decarbonising European Energy Markets, and Challenges to the Future of Gas: unburnable or unaffordable. His most recent paper, Narratives for Natural Gas in Decarbonising European Energy Markets was published in early 2019. He is the editor of a new book on: The Future of Gas in the Gulf: continuity and change, which will be published in the summer of 2019.
